One-third more power is transmitted by its use, or in other words, a belt two-thirds as large will transmit the power if "Cling-Surface" is used.

HOLE IN THE LUNGS

There are thousands of men and women, as well as ever, with holes in their lungs: consumption stopped.

Consumption stopped is consumption cured. What does it?

Some change in the way of life and Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

With the emulsion, give some attention to circumstances: change from a dark damp close room to a sunny dry airy one; from city to country; from hard to an easy life; indoors to out.

A hole in the lungs once healed is no worse than a too-tight waist or waistcoat.

Take the emulsion, and give it a chance to heal the wound.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.

H. M. WHITNEY'S VIEWS OF THE PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION

HAVING been requested to express my views regarding the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, as compared with that of the Centennial Exposition at Chicago in 1893, where I spent six days, I would say that while it may not be on so grand a scale, it is fully as attractive and valuable as a public educator. That of 1893 was held for the most part, if I remember rightly, in one enormous building. This is divided among separate buildings, where the products of each general class are shown, so far as is practicable. The varied styles of architecture used in the Buffalo Exposition are more pleasing to the eye, and convey a beauty which it will be difficult to surpass. The collection of statues, of which there must be at least one hundred, placed inside and outside of the various buildings was a notable feature of the show, and added greatly to its attraction.

As has before been stated, the Hawaiian exhibit was somewhat smaller than it should have been, and having arrived rather late, had to take such place as could then be obtained. It created much interest, however, especially with those who were more or less acquainted with our situation. Louisiana's exhibit was a very large one, covering about 2,000 square feet, sugar being only a by-product, as it were, among the numerous other products sent by that State. Think of a sweet potato weighing 120 pounds. Of course, crowds went to see this giant, and others nearly as attractive. Louisiana's sugar production was stated to be worth $35,000,000, and about the same of cotton. There certainly can be no good reason for that prosperous State being jealous of Hawaii for sending a few shiploads of sugar to help feed the American people, while two-thirds of the sugar consumed by them has to be imported.

There can hardly be a doubt that the Buffalo exposition will return to its promoters its entire cost, although a few of the American papers seem somewhat jealous of her success in venturing into such a costly enterprise. Buffalo, however, is becoming one of the leading cities of America. Situated at the eastern end of Lake Erie, it possesses the same advantages which Chicago does, which is near the western end of the same lake. Buffalo's shipping already ranks second of all the American ports, which fact indicates its fortunate location as a trade center. New York alone surpassing her in this respect.

Traveling by rail shows very little improvement during the past ten years on most of the roads. On some of them, as that between Chicago and Buffalo, via the Michigan Central, it was like driving over a road paved with cobblestones. At some future day, perhaps, rubber tires of some sort will be introduced, giving travelers who pay an extra fee for a berth in the Pullman sleepers a chance to get a little rest.

The railroads are rapidly increasing in number, branching off here and there as feeders to the numerous villages located along the line, and the time will soon come when passenger and freight traffic will compel their construction to every point where freight or passengers are to be had.

During the thirty-five days I was absent from Honolulu, I traveled about 10,000 miles, without an accident of any kind, although a train which followed a few days later was attacked by masked highwaymen, who went through the train, but failed to secure the booty which they supposed was on board. These attacks are becoming too common, and will necessitate guards on each train.

Among the interesting exhibits at the exposition was one representing the method of life-saving from a wreck at sea. A spar forty or fifty feet long, stood upright in the center of the lake, as the last remains of a water-logged vessel in mid-ocean. At the top of this spar were two men, supposed to be the only survivors of the wreck, which had become submerged. Ropes were shot over this mast, which happily lodged near the two men at the masthead, to which one became fastened. First, one of the men slid down on this rope and reached the boat. Then the turn of the officer came, and he followed in the same way, swinging down the rope. When barely rescued by the boat the mast fell over, but the two wrecked men were saved. A tremendous shout went up from the ten thousand spectators, who had witnessed this singular, but very thrilling exhibition. The same entertainment was repeated a day or two later, all being under the supervision of the United States naval life-saving bureau.

Reading the article on the fad of cigarette smoking among the society girls of Honolulu, published in Wednesday's Advertiser, has evidently inspired a devotee of the fad to a flight of Pegasus. Below is given an anonymous contribution of irregular verse, which the writer of the article received yesterday by mail:

TO MY LADY NICOTINE.
You do but lightly touch
With fairy finger-tips, it seems,
The stupid, hampering locks that hold
Imprisoned imagery and dreams—
And as if soul had slipped
Some subtle god-brewn draught,
My tired brain is soothed to rest,
By your gentle, tender craft;
And all the cares and trials
That perplex the busy day
Like the quiet Arabs, silently fold
Their tents and steal away.

Steal away into oblivion,
Slink into their lairs,
While your soft spell creeps o'er
My senses, and takes me unawares,
Into clouds of phantom thoughts—
A wondrous dreamy maze—
And finds a soothing way
Thro' the vexing haze
Of troubled cares, and sends them all,
Reprieved, abashed away.
Then do you, My Lady Nicotine,
Hold supreme your sway.

To that gentle, caressing sway
I unresisting yield,
And find no harrowing foes to fight
In all life's battlefield.
For you do bring me peace, do bid
Them all be still
For but a little space—bid them all
To sleep awhile, until
Necessity, relentless, shall wake
Their troubling dream.
Then about my tired brain you weave
The thread that fancy spins.

The thread that never tangles,
But weaves into a mesh
Of idle phantom fancies and shapes
That trouble not; you do refresh
The dreams of indolent youth
And tinge them with the tint
Of withered rose; My Lady, weaving,
You do bid yourself no rest,
And the graceful folds of floating draperies
That wreath you all about,
Winding about my little world, captive hold
The muse of ease, and keep all else without.
